This is a very short game, but I enjoyed it enough to get every achievement. It's one of those games you will either really like, or not see the appeal of, but personally I don't regret the money, nor time, I spent on this. It's one of those games where if you played it as a kid, it'd probably seem awesome.

Then you play it as a seasoned gamer and realize it's trash.

In all honesty though, this game really just has nothing going for it. Bad story, animations as stiff as a lamp post, glitchy parkour, and more. It tries to combine Assassin's Creed with Gears of War and fails miserably.

Not worth the money at all, even on sale. Get Ride to Hell Retribution, that game is honestly more entertaining (it'll at least make you laugh at how bad it is). And, if you're going to try braving through this game, I highly recommend playing it on LAN co-op with a friend like I did. It made it just a little more bearable.

P.S: For playing coop with virtual LAN: I didn't try hamachi, but if you use Tunngle then make sure the person hosting the server sets the Network Range emulation to 10.x.x Server Emulation. That's the only one that worked for me.. I am a child of the 80's and love these adventure games. AGD interactive and Infamous adventures have done a great job in preserving these games and giving them a little twist. Al Emmo keeps with the spirit of these old games. Adventure, Puzzles with a quirky sense of humor. It is an original game that will keep you entertained. Adventure games from this era keep you really engaged. Talk to everyone, click on everything and think outside the box. Unlike today's action games it is not a series of quick mouse clicks and constant explosions. Focus is on character development and story. Goal is to immerse yourself into the game and get to know the characters. A great game to get.. loved this game, played it with no problem on old xp pc, i saw it on steam and decided to purchase it, it has never worked, steam's fault, or mine, i don't know, just always get the same message, 32 mb, not enough memory or something like that, and yes i have a very good spec machine, as for steam's response to my message for help, about as useful as the proverbial chocolate fireguard. A first-person adventure game with a text parser? Sign me up!

Cleverness abounds from this low-budget indie game. Your vocabulary skills equal points, so e.g. if you "take" an object you get less points than if you, say, "acquire" or "retrieve" it. But all that is just flavor and doesn't influence the game itself, which is a smart move.

The wonkiness of the graphics (2D flat sprites in a 3D world) would seem like a downfall of any other game, but here it adds to the otherworldly mysteriousness of it all. Combine that with an excellent musical score by Makeup And Vanity Set and you've got a dream-like atmosphere like no other.

Only downside (for me) is that when I streamed this game, I kept getting copyright strikes from Makeup And Vanity Set's publishers. Licensing music to a game and then cracking down on YouTubers who try to play said game is NOT cool.. Works fine for me, but I'm not an idiot. Beautiful shmup. I've played Dux on dreamcast, this one is a sequel and it's HD screen. Easy shmup :)

This game reminds me of one of my favorite original Xbox games called Xbox Music Mixer. I'd been wondering how cool that game would be in VR. A VR nightclub where you could play your own tunes and relax.

In fact my search for such an experience led me to Disco Time 80's VR. There's no gameplay here. You're just listening to music in a VR danceclub watching people dance and maybe dancing yourself. If this is not your thing that's understandable. But it's a VR experience that i enjoy greatly and I'm thrilled with this title.

This VR experience is very well crafted and the dancing moves, graphics and atmosphere are excellent.

If i could change anything, I'd like to see an easier way to change/play your own music from inside the program and it would be cool to have large display monitors in this club maybe with an option to add images from my PC.

P.S. Combining Phil Collins "In the air tonight" with Disco Time 80s VR was a mind blowing experience.. Ripping apart an entire human corpse with a glass shard just so that maybe I can see the light of day tomorrow is somehow scarier in text than actually doing it in real life not that I know. I followed this game along on reddit for a couple weeks before getting it and I have to say, it is one of the best kingdom management games out there. The amount of detail to races, the infinite amount of bardic songs, the ascii art, and all of the minigames make this game quite unique!

The dev is really responsive to questions and suggestions and he pumps out updates which is really nice. The only bad part of this game are the certain things that are always 100% the same, which make sense that they are but still, after playing it for a long time you can remember exactly those things are and what they do.

All in all a 9/10! (Really wish the locations could be randomized). Best played when riding carnival rides with your ragtag gang of rapsallion baseball playing buddies, chewing tobacco and ending up throwing up on people. 11/10. Bob Came in Pieces is a lovely, casual physics-based puzzle game that features a story mode with 14 chapters where your main goal is to collect all the missing ship parts you have lost during a crash with a meteor. To solve the puzzles you have to combine certain parts and attach them to one of the 8 sockets on your ship.

Additionally the game features 10+1 really challenging and cool VR missions (heavily inspired by the VR missions in Metal Gear Solid) where you have to solve some really crazy puzzles with a pre-defined set of ship parts.

In both the adventure and the VR mode the timer can be toggled on/off so it's up to you if you play the game the casual way and explore the levels or go for gold and try to beat the clock to get a silver or gold medal and the respective Steam achievement.

The replayability depends on whether you're into time-attack or not. Either way i can highly recommend this game so make sure to get it (when it's on sale)!
